

DOROTHY COLLINS

□ The toast of TV's "Hit Parade" came out of retirement to zing it again by singing on Broadway in hit play "Follies." Dotty, happily wed and a mother, insists "domesticity has kept me youthful. Keeping up with today's generation means keeping on the young side."

ALEXIS SMITH

□ Wed to Craig Stevens and only a year out of retirement (she had to learn to dance for the play "Follies") Alexis' zip is the envy of chorus gals half her age. "But, I kept active," she says. Doing what? "Doing what a good wife should do! Keeping her husband happy."

YVONNE DE CARLO

□ Yvonne took over as family breadwinner after her hubby was injured. Her stint in "Follies," her first Broadway play "is," she says, "not my last. Working is a tonic for me and I like what that tonic is doing for me." And, so, obviously, do her fans.
